Прочитайте тексти:

Mr Goldring comes to school 3 times a week to talk with pupils about their problems. Children feel lonely. Their parents work until late and they don't have anyone to talk to. "Some pupils study several hours a day but they don't get good marks. They can't show what they really know. School pushes pupils to be successful and this is very stressful. (3)..... I'm very happy when they ask me for help."

In the morning Miss Havilland teaches English and in the afternoon she works in the library. She works there four hours a day. The library opens at 12. Some children come to the library every week. "Miss Havilland is great. She helps us out with our projects," say pupils. "Some children come only once a month. (4)..... They rarely read anything else. They are more into computers but I still believe in a good read," says Miss Havilland.

"It's not easy, but I love it," says Mr Rogers. He gets to school at 8. He first greets the teachers in the staff room. He makes a lot of telephone calls and sends a lot of e-mails. He meets the school council twice a month. (5)..... They discuss school outings, anti-bullying strategies or problems like skipping classes. To make school a good place for teaching and learning, it's important that teachers, students and parents work things out together. I think we are a good team," says Mr Rogers.
